Brian Koski joins Chemsultants International Team as Logistics Manager

Chemsultants International is pleased to announce that Brian Koski has joined the organization as Logistics Manager for the Product and Process Development business unit.

In this new role, Brian will report to Tom Besselman, Director of Operations. Brian will focus on managing the overall materials supply stream of Chemsultants pilot coating, new product scale up and specialty contract manufacturing operations. He will provide planning, oversight and direction for materials purchasing, sourcing, supplier relations, inventory management, and warehousing activities.

“Brian will be integrally involved in the continuing development and growth of Chemsultants capabilities to provide service excellence to our coated products customers” said Gary Avalon, Chief Operating Officer.

Brian brings a solid background of education, training and industry experience to Chemsultants. His credentials include CLSS, CPIM and CIRM certifications, an MBA from Baldwin Wallace College in Cleveland, Ohio and extensive industry experience with The Kennedy Group, Avery Dennison, and Loctite Corporation.
